JetBlue Offers Refundable Tickets

JetBlue Airways has introduced refundable fares. The new option allows customers to make unlimited reservation changes, including name changes, or opt for a full refund any time prior to the flight's departure. If customers can't notify JetBlue of changes to their reservations before the flight departs, any unused funds are converted to a JetBlue credit valid for one year from the date it was issued. This credit is fee-free and fully transferable. To celebrate the launch of its new fare option, through Feb. 13 JetBlue is offering TrueBlue Customers who book refundable travel quadruple TrueBlue points each way when they book online at www.jetblue.com, or triple TrueBlue points each way when booking through other channels. United Allows Economy Passengers Just One Free Checked Bag

United Airlines now allows customers who purchase nonrefundable domestic economy tickets and who do not have status in Mileage Plus or Star Alliance just one free checked bag. Passengers may check a second bag for a $25 service fee. For all customers, the cost to check up to four additional bags will be $100 per bag. Previous charges ranged from $85-$125 per bag. The cost to check items that require special handling because they are large, overweight or fragile will now be either $100 or $200, depending on the item. United's most frequent fliers - customers who have Premier status or higher in Mileage Plus, or Silver status or higher with Star Alliance - will continue to receive the benefit of checking two bags for free. British Airways To Introduce All-Business Class Transatlantic Flights

British Airways will launch double daily business class-only flights from London City airport to New York next year. The new flights will operate on Airbus A318 aircraft with 32 seats onboard. It will offer 15-minute check-in for passengers in both New York and London. It's a clear challenge to other all-premium carriers, including Eos, which flies between New York's JFK and London Stansted and has 48 seats on 757s, and Silverjet, which operates 767s with no more than 100 seats between London's Luton and Newark. BA is not the first major carrier to level its sites on the all-premium class transatlantic carriers. Many industry observers believe American Airlines dealt a deathblow to the late premium carrier MAXjet when American started flying from JFK to Stansted, MAXjet's key route. In another effort on BA's part targeting the high-end market, in May, a BA-backed startup, OpenSkies, will begin offering mostly premium-class service (two thirds of the plane will be business or premium economy), flying between either Brussels or Paris' Charles de Gaulle and an as-yet-to-be determined New York airport. Denver Airport Offers Free Wi-Fi

FreeFi Networks, which provides free, advertiser-sponsored airport Wi-Fi, is offering its program at Denver International. The switch to FreeFi Networks allowed the airport to eliminate a $7.95 daily charge for Internet access. As a result of the change, Denver International is now the largest airport in North America to offer free wireless Internet access terminals.

Hilton HHonors Eliminate Blackout Dates and Capacity Controls

The Hilton Family of Hotels has ended all blackout dates for all members of its HHonors loyalty program. As long as a standard room is available, members can confirm that room. All standard rooms are available, not just a limited number each night. No additional points are needed to avoid blackout dates. (Source: Hilton press release).

Miscellaneous

Did you know your cell phone could do this?

Have you locked your keys in the car? Does your car have remote keyless entry? Here's a good reason to own a cell phone: If you lock your keys in the car and the spare keys are at home, call someone at home on their cell phone from your cell phone. Hold your cell phone about a foot from your car door and have the person at your home press the unlock button, holding it near the mobile phone on their end. Your car will unlock! Saves someone from having to drive your keys to you. Distance is no object. You could be hundreds of miles away, and if you can reach someone who has the other "remote" for your car, you can unlock the doors (or the trunk).
